

The American-Scandinavian Foundation

REPORT: JULY 1, 2001 TO JUNE 30, 2003

The American-Scandinavian Foundation (ASF) is a publicly supported, nonprofit organization that promotes international understanding through educational and cultural exchange between the United States and Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway, and Sweden. The ASF carries on an extensive program of fellowships, grants, trainee placement, publishing, membership offerings, and cultural activities. In October 2000, the ASF inaugurated Scandinavia House: The Nordic Center in America, its new headquarters, where it presents a broad range of public programs furthering its mission. The ASF has associate members and subscribers worldwide. More than 26,000 Scandinavians and Americans have participated in its exchange programs since 1910.
